Maxwell Schaefer

In order to test the runtime of the program, I made a python script to generate suitable matricies of dimensions from 1 to 50. I then used a bash script to test the runtime of the different matricices, testing 10 randomly selected numbers from each matrix 5 times each and outputting the difference in System.nanotime() to a csv file with the dimensions of the matrix in one column and the runtime in the other.